RESEARCH INTERESTS

Google Scholar h-index: 27, i10-index: 48; Worldwide top 2 percentile scientist (for single years) by Elsevier and Stanford U.

Overarching question: How can we enable organizational members to act more prosocially (to promote others’/collective interests)?

1. Fostering individuals’ positive experiences (e.g., trust, gratitude, elevation, authenticity)
2. Fostering an exceptional organizational system (e.g., leader humor, HR practices)
3. Fostering a high-trust society

EDITED BOOK

Kong, D. T., & Forsyth, D. R. (Eds.) (2016). Leading through Conflict: Into the Fray. New York: Palgrave/McMillan.

“This perfectly-timed collection covers the field of conflict from the personal to the social, and does so with impressive breadth and originality. Kong and Forsyth have assembled a first-rate collection of expert contributors whose cutting-edge ideas advance our understanding of the origins of conflicts as well as novel approaches to their constructive resolution. An unusual strength of the book is its powerful and deft blend of multi-disciplinary perspectives coupled with multiple methodologies. Academic conflict theorists will draw both insight and inspiration from this marvelous collection, and conflict resolution practitioners will want it on their shelf as an invaluable resource.”

Dr. Roderick M. Kramer
William R. Kimball Professor of Organizational Behavior (currently, Emeritus)
Stanford Graduate School of Business, Stanford University

“Established and emerging scholars deepen our insight into the causes and consequences of conflict. They open new areas of exploration by integrating knowledge from fields as diverse as morality, emotions and social networks with conflict theory. They further our understanding of conflict through case and field studies, and by applying new theoretical perspectives. And they move us forward by drawing on our growing understanding of forgiveness and reconciliation. In short, these authors bring new energy to the analysis of conflict.”

Dr. Mara Olekalns
Professor of Management (Negotiation)
Melbourne Business School, University of Melbourne
(Former) Conflict Management Division Chair, Academy of Management

“Much has been written about conflict. However, it is equally true that much remains to be learnt about this hugely important topic. Kong and Forsyth bring together an impressive group of scholars that share with us latest research and theorizing on the nature, consequences, and resolution of conflict. The chapters do a wonderful job in examining conflict from multiple levels and perspectives, a true reflection of the inherently interdisciplinary nature of the study of conflict. This volume is sure to engage and lead to novel insights for both researchers and practitioners.”

Dr. Jochen Reb
Professor of Organizational Behavior and Human Resources
Co-Editor of “Mindfulness in Organizations: Foundations, Research, and Applications”
Lee Kong Chian School of Business, Singapore Management University
