

Ways to Get Involved:

* CU Student Environmental Groups—There are several environmentally-focused student groups on campus, including the Environmental Studies Club, which is dedicated to shaping the ENVS major. Find the ENVS Club and other CU environmental groups here: <http://www.colorado.edu/ecenter/about/links>.

*ENVS listserv—Sign up for the ENVS Weekly Digest, a newsletter containing ENVS-related events and opportunities. Subscribe at: <http://www.colorado.edu/envs/current-students/undergraduate-students/undergraduate-list-serv>.

*Environmental Center—The CU Environmental Center offers lots of opportunities to get involved in environmental issues. Check out E-Center Events Calendar, <http://www.colorado.edu/ecenter/calendar>, to find out about environmental events on campus and in the community. Or, join the E-Center Listserv: <http://www.colorado.edu/ecenter/> (click “Sign up for our newsletter!”)

*Front Range Bioneers Conference—Learn about breakthrough solutions to social and environmental challenges at the November 2014 event: <http://www.colorado.edu/ecenter/bioneers>.
